

FINS Primary Functions

Key Functions of FINS are hypothesized to have a positive effect on children and families by producing desired change (in the identified areas of dysfunction). Performance measures provide benchmarks for desired activities within these functions, which are known or expected to affect outcomes. These are measures of various outputs, including such performance characteristics as intervals between events, numbers of activities performed, decision thresholds applied, etc.

